Description

The PeakTech 5160 measures the current air humidity and the current air temperature via a permanently installed sensor for a quick and exact evaluation of the measurement results. The easy-to-read LCD display is equipped with automatic backlight, which activates itself via a photodiode when the brightness is low. There are buttons on the side for the data hold function or the measurement function selection. The PeakTech 5160 is particularly suitable for daily use in construction, as well as the evaluation of the climate of living rooms and greenhouses.
